Justice and Equality: the March Continues

Lecia J. Brooks

Director of Outreach
Southern Poverty Law Center

Noon
February 6, 2013

Gore Business School Auditorium

More than 50 years after the birth of the Civil Rights Movement, where are we today? There are clear signs of progress in racial equality, however, in recent years the number of hate groups in America has skyrocketed.

Lecia Brooks, director of outreach for the SPLC, speaks across the country to promote tolerance and diversity. She joined the SPLC staff in 2004 as director of Mix It Up at Lunch Day, a program designed to help break down racial, cultural, and social barriers in schools. The Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC), a non-profit civil rights organization, has become internationally known for tracking and exposing the activities of extremist groups.

For a disability accommodation, contact the Diversity Center at 801.832.2822 five business days prior to the event.
